

Poetic Stoic

Image credit: Dall-E

by

Redwan Rahman

Freedom

A man is not free,
For freedom is a myth.
You all are slaves,
Poor, Middle Class, the Rich.

For a man that does what he likes
Is captive to desire
And a man who does what is right
Is a slave of the sire(God)

For some slavery are curse
Some are gifts
You think you're free?
Your freedom is a myth

A man is not free
So don't believe in fallacy
Do you realise you are born into bondage
Even your soul is trapped inside your body

Power

In the quest for power, many men roam
Not for luxury, but to gain control
To fix what's broken in his eyes
To make everyone live his way of life

A man is cursed with ideas
That he thinks is right
To make it come to life
He would fight day and night
Till the last breath before he dies

A man lusts for power
Because it is a potent tool
To steer the wheel of fate
To play by his rule

increaseth knowledge

increaseth pain

Urge to fix the broken
Drives men insane
That is why he craves to reign
Control what he wants to gain

Herodotus once said a thing

Out of all men's miseries

The bitterest is this.

To know too much

But can not fix it by any means

This where power becomes irresistible
But it's uglier than it seems.

Validation

Hold thee accountable
For the sins ye did
World is degenerate
Without shame and guilt

seek not validation
Don't take heed
When the wicked devil say
They deserved what you did

Rather make amends
with dignity and grace
Keep thy soul right at its place
Repent with guilt
Atone for sins

World's affirmation you don't need
Their judgment clouded
They filled with greed
Away from good
Following them will lead

Self Image

In your mind
Keep an image of your self
In Motives of your decisions
You must delve
Question your actions
Is it right or is it wrong
Be aware of your intentions
Is pure or pure horror?
Are they good
Or they're filled with dread
Careful of the path you thread

Question your actions
Consider the consequences

Be morally superior to everyone else
Be proud of yourself
Be humble outside the shell
Don't show arrogance
Cause it leads to hell

Respect

In our life, many things are negotiable
Not respect, regard and honour
Work hard to be paid in homage
A man without self respect
Is just a damage(pity)

Make respect reciprocal
But be the first to give
It's so typical for man
To only expect to receive

Never take regards regardlessly
Because it's a great gift
Lift your self esteem
But in mutual respect you must believe